

New Zealand
Anaesthetic Technicians' Society

Honour History – Challenge the Future

March 2nd and 3rd 2019

With education comes expectation of outcome. We strive to give our best and expect the delivery to be upheld. Our profession is forever changing, forever being rewritten into history. We honour history by studying it, feeling it and trying to understand it. This is a daily expectation in which we accept and are striving to improve. We can look at history not to change it but to accept it and move to the next. We as Anaesthetic Technicians are in a position of constant change, bringing difficulties to which we have to make decisions to history.

I am bringing to you this symposium with a programme to Honour History and Challenge the Future.

We have an open future to which we must pay attention. We have a programme hopefully to challenge thoughts, bring understanding and to advance knowledge.

I would like to invite Technicians and other healthcare professionals to Whangarei for a two-day symposium and take part in what I hope will be two days of high education and light entertainment.

Come to the winterless north and join us in New Zealand's northern most city. Stay awhile and see the great sights that are on offer. We have an abundance of things to do from fishing and surfing, to great art and museums. Our restaurants and bars are top notch as well!

Our programme will enlighten you, challenge your thoughts and entertain you. We have brought together great presentations and workshops.

So come join me, I look forward to seeing you there.

Matthew Lawrence

Matthew Lawrence

Symposium Organiser